Make a clear statement of why the conflict needs to be resolved and communicate how you want the conflict resolved.

Schedule a time and a private setting for conflict resolution. Arrange for an impartial mediator if necessary.

Address the issues face-to-face (notes, emails, memos, texts or social media are not a productive way to resolve differences).

Stick to the issues. It is tempting to bring up issues from the past or resort to personal criticism but it is important to address only the specific behaviors and situations that need resolution.

Listen to the other person(s) perspective with an open mind.

Take responsibility for your own behavior or actions that may be contributing to the conflict.

Take time out if necessary. Emotions may interfere with resolving the conflict positively. If this transpires, take a time-out and resume the conflict resolution at another designated time.

Supervisor and Manager’s responsibilities:

Complaint Procedure:

In many cases, the situation can be resolved through an informal process.

If reasonable and comfortable: tell the individual their behaviour is unwelcome and ask them to stop. This discussion should take place out of the immediate work area, in a private and confidential setting, or may take place in writing.

Seek advice from a supervisor, manager, union representative, or the Human Resources Manager. These individuals can help you choose a course of action, draft a way to tell or write to the person that you want them to behave differently, or arrange for conciliation or mediation.

If, after asking the individual to stop their behaviour, the behaviour continues or if the employee chooses not to discuss the matter with the individual, the employee may file a written complaint detailing the allegations. The complaint must be submitted to one of the following:

- Your immediate supervisor;
- The President of the Students’ Union;
- The Human Resources Manager of the Students’ Union; and/or
- The General Manager of the Students’ Union.

You also have the right to contact the Alberta Human Rights Commission to file a complaint and, if circumstances warrant it, the police, to file a charge.

Investigation Process:

Once a complaint is received, it shall be kept strictly confidential. An investigation shall be undertaken immediately and all necessary steps taken to resolve the problem. If a complaint is filed through the union as a grievance, a meeting shall be held with the union representative before and after the investigation.

In complex or sensitive situations, an external investigator may be hired.

The investigator shall ### prepare a report, and ### ensure the investigation is completed in a timely fashion.

Any complainant(s), respondent(s) and witnesses have the responsibility to maintain confidentiality and to cooperate with those responsible for dealing with the investigation.

Both the complainant(s) and the respondent(s) have the right to be accompanied by a person of their choice during the interview.

Resolution:

If the investigation reveals evidence to support the complaint of disrespectful behaviour, the respondent shall be subjected to corrective action that may include education or training and/or discipline up to and including dismissal. The incident shall be documented in the respondent’s employment or volunteer file.

If the investigation fails to find evidence to support the complaint, there shall be no documentation concerning the complaint in the file of the respondent.

No documentation whatsoever shall be placed in the complainant’s file where the complaint is filed in good faith, whether the complaint is upheld or not.

Complaints which are made in bad faith and are vexatious in nature may lead to discipline up to and including dismissal for the complainant.

If the individual about whom the complaint is made is not an employee or a volunteer of the Students' Union, actions to ensure a respectful workplace may include discontinuing business with individual, barring the person from Students' Union facilities or services, reporting the incident to The Office of Human Rights and Safe Disclosure at the University of Alberta, and/or reporting the incident to the University of Alberta Protective Services or the Edmonton Police Service.

Any interference with the conduct of an investigation, or retaliation against a complainant, respondent or witness, may itself result in disciplinary action. Retaliation includes demotion, unwanted
+ transfer, denial of opportunities within the organization, as well as harassment of the individual as a result of them making a complaint, having been named in a complaint, or having provided evidence regarding the complaint.

         setting, or may take place in writing.
      b. Seek advice from a supervisor, manager, union representative, or the Human Resources Manager.
         These individuals can help you choose a course of action, draft a way to tell or write to the person that you want them to behave differently, or arrange for conciliation or mediation.
   ii. If, after asking the individual to stop their behaviour, the behaviour continues or if the employee chooses not to discuss the matter with the individual, the employee may file a written complaint detailing the circumstances warrant it, the police, to file a charge.

       faith, whether the complaint is upheld or not.
   iv. Complaints which are made in bad faith and are vexatious in nature may lead to discipline up to and including dismissal for the complainant.
   v. If the individual about whom the complaint is made is not an employee or a volunteer of the Students’ Union, actions to ensure a respectful workplace may include discontinuing business with individual, barring the person from Students’ Union facilities or services, reporting the incident to The Office of Human Rights and Safe Disclosure at the University of Alberta, and/or reporting the incident to the University of Alberta Protective Services or the Edmonton Police Service.

vi. Any interference with the conduct of an investigation, or retaliation against a complainant, respondent or witness, may itself result in disciplinary action. Retaliation includes demotion, unwanted transfer, denial of opportunities within the organization, as well as harassment of the individual as a result of them having made a complaint, having been named in a complaint, or having provided evidence regarding the complaint.

vii. Measures to rehabilitate the workplace culture may be implemented.
