Report to Students’ Council
August 17th, 2006

Updates
COFA- The Council of Faculty Associations is having a retreat on August 26th. Thanks to all our speakers for confirming and not dropping out. Those that have dropped out were dealt with.

New Faculty Orientation – The panel was mostly great. We look forward to trying it again (with some tinkering to format-type things and my moderating skills).
SMART Classroom Access for Student Groups– This is ticking along. Frantically. The paperwork is done pending no on we’re working with taking issue with it. Now for the hard part.

Stuff you Expect to See
So… I lamed out on my report last time, with a promise to murder some trees this time to catch y’all up this time around. So that’s just what I’m going to do. Ha! You didn’t actually expect that, did you? And now you have to read it to see if I’m meeting with shady types on company time (because if you don’t, I may have made that Keyano deal, and you’ll never be the wiser1…)

Things I’ve attended this month include...
• 2 University staff orientations
• 2 meetings with the University Architect about student space
• 1 meeting about BearScat (that went very well)
• 1 meeting about Beartracks (It was delicious. Coffee was had)
• 2 meetings about the Smart Classroom stuff
• 12 internal meetings and one exec retreat (not counting anything that happened after the 21st)
• 4 meetings that involved the Vice Provost Academic Programs – they were important, but I won’t bore you with the details
• No GFC Meetings (Just you wait… they’re coming.)
• 4 meetings with University services not listed above that were also important. Nothing major came out of those yet. But stay tuned.
• 1 meeting with the CAUS Executive Director and 1 meeting with the Augustana Students’ Association. I think I mentioned those last time.

Whew. And… no nefarious dealings. Sorry to make you sit through all that for such a deflatingly scandal-free report of my schemes. But it brings a smile to my face, knowing that you spent all this time looking for references to my secret underground board game society and were disappointed thusly (though that sort of met too – and I still lost terribly, despite my best efforts to use my conflict-of-interest superpower to crush my opponents into accepting that my victory was inevitable by virtue of my holding of two elected positions at once).

1 Sorry for implying that you are in any way “wiser.” No offense was meant, nor am I an expert in the relative wisdom of reading reports.

More Stuff You Expect to See
I can hear you groaning already. Too bad for you. Keep reading, or be derelict in your responsibilities and feel guilty forever.

Upcoming Engagements
The Vice Provost (Information and Technology) is swinging by to have a round of introductions with the Exec on Wednesday. That should be fun (seriously, it should. He’s a nice guy).
2 Planning Committees (on totally different, yet academic things, courtesy of University Teaching Services)
3 more Orientations (and a potential combined total of 4 or more public appearances at Orientations and other start of school events. I think I might melt).
1 road trip to Augustana
1 skipped class. Potentially, one attended class. That’s right. Classes are around the corner already. That means midterms are only about 40 sleeps away plus or minus your stamina...

Something You Don’t Expect to See
I know what you’re thinking (let’s see if the Speaker can find a way to rule my report out of order for violating Robert’s Rules with this paragraph…). You’re thinking “she’s got to be joking. She can’t possibly have done something else worth my precious time?” I can, and I will.

I mean, 30 occasions (I think I counted that right) where I left my desk in the past month or so? Something cool should have happened...

For your edification, here’s the quickest way I could think of to sum up what all those meetings are for - a goals and progress update! (and there’s that groan again…)

- Teaching, Teaching and Research – Progress on political policy development continues. Pending the release of the draft of the University Academic Plan, we’ll have a better idea of how we’re going to go about

2 Given that this document is in fact supposed to be a transparent record of my activities, let it be known that I didn’t actually attempt anything that would be a conflict-of-interest. That would be unethical (“bad” even). I wouldn’t do that for serious gain, and I certainly won’t do it for the board game club.

3 That’s right. I am asserting that this document and its contents are worth your time, despite earlier footnote comments about not being an expert on such things. Deal with it.

Doesn’t that just feel like you sat through one of those “don’t pirate DVDs – it’s stealing” ads at the beginning of a movie you just paid $11 to sit through? I mean, if you’re still reading, you obviously kind of agree. Or something. Otherwise, we wouldn’t be having this conversation.

Dude, go back to the report already. Didn’t anyone ever tell you that footnotes are always irrelevant?
talking to the University about quality education and the roles of teaching, research and teaching and research on campus and frame the way we research teaching (and you thought I’d made a typo). While we’re waiting, we’re hatching plots. * cue the freaky evil genius laughter *

• Actually, what we’re doing is meeting with people around campus to get a sense of their mandates and goals for the year, gathering fun facts, and making sure that we’re knowledgeable enough about the grand quagmire of University affairs so that those of us who have to go to all the University’s meetings about that quagmire in the fall at least sound competent.

• Academic Materials – Work with the University Bookstore is set to continue in a couple of committees in September. Anything more grandiose is still being figured out.

• Testbank/SMART classroom – I already told you about the Smart classroom stuff. The testbank is kind of on hold pending the kickoff of the University’s September meeting marathon.

Okay. Now I’m done⁴.

⁴ For now… MWHAHAAAAHA
Greetings Council,

- Week of Welcome: Major breakthroughs in awesome, as well as a few pitfalls. Good news: poster content is nearly done, shirts are sent off, sponsorship for WOW is mostly wrapped up. Bad news, a few deals fell through, and might be dropped off the program. I highly encourage you all to come volunteer, as you will not only be furthering this organization's mandate of “serving students in ways which meet student needs” but you’ll also receive one of the best volunteer t-shirts in many years!

- Food Services Task Force: a productive meeting today between David Bruch, Bill Smith, Mike Janz and myself has cleared up a lot of issues. The timelines indicate that this group should be ready to go for mid-September. Before then, council will get a document outlining the terms of this committee, as well as a request for appointments.

- Political Policy: Chris Henderson and I have been working on a MNIF proposal for UPC. This is a very interesting read. I await further discussion in UPC for the direction of future priorities.

- Council of Faculty Associations: Just letting you know that Amanda and I have decided to exclude programming sessions because I didn’t think it meshed well with the direction that we want to take FAs this year.

- Campus Food Bank: We’ve divided our priorities for the year into three categories: space, awareness and policy! For awareness, I’ve been helping to define the campaigns efforts for the year, and determine their primary targets. As such, we’re going to be working on promoting CFB to audiences that haven’t been adequately addressed, namely graduate students, academic staff and alumni.

- ECOS Development Task Force: The second meeting was quite good, as we are in the midst of identifying major values for a service like ECOS, centering around three main points: advocacy, services, and student support. I’m looking forward to future discussions, and reporting breakthroughs in service direction for other Council meetings.

- Orientation: We’re gearing up for a GOOD TIME! The OL Manuals are in print, the shirts are sent off, and colors are being speculated. I look forward to interacting with as many new students and volunteers as I can.

- Pandemic Planning: For those of you involved in Orientation, look forward to a very fun surprise in your delegate bags! The Public Health Response Committee has made an insistent request to raise the issue of hand washing awareness with new students.

- From Backpack to Briefcase: There a lot of work being put into revitalizing this service and catering it to be more of a resource focused service to tie in necessary information and deadlines into a sine destination. Key members of this movement are the CSD, CaPS and Alumni Affairs.

- Student Life Advisory Committee: My committee goal is coming to fruition! SLAC’s new mandate is being hashed out, whereas it will act as a review mechanism for services on a volunteer basis!
- Exec Retreat: We had one on Wednesday! We talked about updates, and fall goals! Isn’t it great knowing that we sometimes talk to each other?

Answering the question that came from last council meeting: firstly, there is relatively no new information on the DOS consultant for Student Group Services. The only new information that I have is that this consultant will have the goal of aligning the student groups structure (from the University side) with the goals of Dare to Discover. Norma and I are in the process of setting up a meeting to discuss this further.

As most of you will notice, there is a distinct disparity of facial hair compared to the last meeting of council. I’m currently seeking direction from councillors on how to best utilize my beard in serving the greater needs of campus.

On the horizon!
